RE: CLAIMING RACES AND COUNTY ASSESSMENT—
Horse racing buffs know what a claiming race is, but for the uninitiated let me explain what a claiming race is and how it might be related to the county assessment which is now taking place in Independence County.

A claiming race is a race for young or inexperienced horses which are supposedly of about equal ability. Now, so that someone is not tempted to run in a horse of greater ability so that he can win the purse from the other less experienced steeds, a claiming amount is placed for all entries of that race.

Then anyone coming forward with the claiming sum may purchase the horse for that amount. This system effectively controls the entry of more valuable horses in these races.

You may ask how this is related to county assessments? Well, perhaps the law should be changed so that the owner sets a value on his property. But, let it operate like the claiming race. Anyone willing to come forward and pay the owner's set value may purchase his property. This would probably solve the problem of people undervaluing their property.

On the other hand, I have had several people say that they would jump at the opportunity to sell their property for what it has been recently reassessed. Perhaps this law could be reversed so that if the county over-valued the land, the county government would have to lower the assessed valuation or buy the property for what they said it was worth.

I make this suggestion facetiously of course. We all know that the property must be reassessed on a systematic basis so that property values can be kept at a realistic figure for the changing times we live in.

Perhaps, some of us just don't realize how the value of our property has increased, or how the value of the dollar has decreased.

It would really be unbearable to pay these taxes anyway if we didn't realize that the bulk of them go for such good things as education, county services such as roads and library, the airport and other worthwhile expenses.

It would be unbearable, also, if we felt that the money were being inefficiently used or squandered by our city or county administrations.

Pay-as-you-view TV
new to U.S. hotels

NEW YORK (AP) — A study of better hotels across the United States shows that the average guest is about 42 years old, lodges at the hotel only two days and rarely, if ever, goes to the movies during his stay. It means millions of dollars aren't spent because the weary traveler finds it too much of a bother to get up, get dressed and join the line at the Bijou. Steps are being taken to correct this.

A young company is bringing uncut theatrical films to that traveler's room at $3 a throw, making it possible for him to see such shows as "Carnal Knowledge" 12 times a day if he chooses.

The company is Trans-World Communications, a division of Columbia Pictures Industries, Inc., and it pipes the film into hotel room television sets on a cable linked to a master control center.

Columbia made the hotel study and Trans-World is capitalizing on the findings with a vengeance, searching for what one senior Columbia executive calls "the lost audience"—that army of 42-year-old guests.

This pay-as-you-view system was developed by Bill Butters, a hard-charging Knoxville, Tenn., native who now is Trans-World president.

The system made its debut last December at a posh 1,000-room Atlanta hotel, spread in June to nearly 5,000 rooms at five major New York hotels and isn't really going full blast yet.

It's going to be installed at major hotels in a total of 23 U.S. cities, Toronto and London. Butters estimates that 160,000 hotel rooms will be wired in by the end of 1973.

A hotel guest gets a choice of two new theatrical films on two cable channels, selects one and calls room service.

It tacks $3 on his hotel bill and relays the order to a control center. Then the show goes on. If the guest leaves in mid-movie, it will be there when he gets back. The $3 show runs from 8 a.m. one day to 7 a.m. the next.

All three television networks are watching all this with an eagle eye.

"We're not competing with free television," Butters is careful to emphasize. He says that among other factors, the viewing audience in hotel rooms isn't counted in the television ratings.

Senate to resolve split over welfare

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate may resolve a three-way split over welfare reform by adopting all three plans—but only temporarily.

The compromise—to experiment with the various ways of providing welfare families a guaranteed annual income rather than choose any method permanently—may have improved the chances for Senate passage of the massive legislation containing Social Security revisions as well as welfare reform.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., a central figure in the debate on the measure, said Friday that, contrary to earlier predictions, the measure might still become law this year.

Congress is trying to adjourn by Oct. 14, leaving one week for compromises to be worked out between the Senate and House versions of the bill if the Senate can clear it by the end of next week.

Originally, Senate leaders predicted the debate would run a month or more.

Now, a rush toward pre-election adjournment of the Congress has pressured the bill's managers into compromising the bitterly-disputed provision of the bill dealing with welfare families.

It now seems certain the votes are not available to pass any one of the three plans advanced so far for giving welfare families a guaranteed annual income.

Over Long's strong opposition, the Senate Friday adopted, 37 to 34, an amendment to cover under Medicare the cost of eye, dental and foot care and hearing aids, for individuals with up to $3,000 annual income and couples with up to $5,000.

Fighting
in Yemen reported

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Yemen claimed its forces shot down two South Yemeni fighters today.

A North Yemen army communiqué said the two MIG 17s were downed in an early morning air raid on the border town of Kutoba, scene of fighting for the past four days.

The communiqué said 13 civilians and one soldier were killed and three other soldiers wounded in the South Yemeni air attack.

The communiqué was broadcast by North Yemen radio and reported from the capital, Sana'a, by the Middle East News Agency.

The statement claimed a school, mosque and hospital in Kutoba were "heavily bombed and strafed" and that several houses were set afire.

The communiqué also reported a ground battle in progress near Kutoba in which "several South Yemeni tanks and armored cars were destroyed."

The communiqué termed the hostilities "aggression aimed at plunging the two neighboring countries into a senseless war."

Homeowners may be harnessing energy
for power from sun

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — An Arizona State University engineering professor says he has successfully tested a system which would enable most homes, factories and office buildings to generate their own electricity by harnessing energy from the sun.

"With this type of solar energy system you wouldn't have to build more power plants in most of the nation to meet the growing energy shortage," Dr. Charles E. Backus told newsmen Tuesday.

"Every building would be its own power plant. Only the northeast part of the country, which doesn't get that much sunlight, would have to get additional power with other means."

Backus, here for the Inter-society Energy Conversion Engineering Conference sponsored by the American Chemical Society, said his system uses a series of solar cells developed to power spaceships in flight.

The cells, he said, are put on the roof of a building in such a manner that when the sun's rays hit them, the energy is absorbed and turned into electricity which the building can immediately put to use.

The energy also can be stored for use at night and on days when the sun is obscured by clouds, Backus said.

"There is a lot of sunlight in Arizona," the scientist said, referring to where he conducted his research, "but I believe there is sufficient energy coming from the sun in most of the states so that this system is workable in the bulk of the United States."

FOOTPRINTS

By GEORGE SMITH

The Red Sea parted. The Amazing Kreskin dropped an ace from his sleeve and failed to find the hidden object. Johnny Unitas quit football and George Blonda missed a 13-yard field goal.

It snowed in July in downtown Patmos, and nobody, repeat, nobody grew a watermelon in Hempstead County that surpassed 100 pounds. Rev. Billy Graham held a revival in Madison Square Garden and failed to convert a single soul.

Richard and Liz got a divorce, a Paul Newman movie lost money, Howard Hughes threw a get-acquainted party for the press.

The eternal nightmare became the impossible dream come true.

The "impossible" came in the form of a letter this week from a major record club.

But let me start at the beginning.

Several years ago, despite the advice from my wife, in-laws, a psychiatrist, professors and several noted attorneys, I joined a record club.

Not just any record club, but THE record club, according to the information in the back of a Superboy comic book. I would receive about 413 free records, or something like that, and all I had to do was agree to purchase 12 records within the next year "at popular club prices."

I ordered my records, and was only mildly perturbed several weeks later when a bill for $2.90 for "mailing and handling" of the records arrived.

But with the innocence of the newborn, I rushed in my check and awaited the records.

They came, finally, and two days later, before I even unwrapped half of the albums, a letter from the company... a computerized letter, I might add.

arrived. In effect the letter said I was to choose at least one of the albums listed on the enclosed pamphlet and return the folder immediately. The selections were as follows: "Beddy-bye Time for Tots," Elvis Presonovitch; "The Great Rebellion in Song and Verse," Orson Welles; "Goodnight, Irene and other Oldies," Johnny Jacobs and the Hi-Lighters; and "It Was the Year that Was: 1934," Les Brown and his Band of you-know-what.

Since my taste runs to Buck Owens and Porter Wagoner, I didn't send it in. And I received not one but all four... with an enclosed bill.

To make a long story short as short as possible, I have been battling The Big Computer for nigh on to four years, sending records back, mailing in complaints, mailing back charges not due, mailing back records that were warped, mailing back duns already paid, etc.

Finally, I quit. Literally laid down my pencil and refused to communicate with that ding-blasted machine that still has me living at an address I left four years ago.

Friday I got a letter from a woman claiming to be the member assistance representative of the company. In part, it said:

"I have initiated the transaction to insure your account has been properly credited, and you will no longer receive any billings from the Club."

"Please accept our apologies for any trouble and inconvenience caused in this matter."

The victory would have been sweet if the letter hadn't been computerized.

And to top it all, my wife informed me she just joined a book-of-the-month club.

Girl watching:

Showing how it's done

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a square crowded with beautiful women, debonair Joe Beagin, balding head of the International Society of Girl Watchers, is showing how it's done. It's all right, he explains learnedly, to turn the head toward the receding figure of a passing woman, but it's a no-no to make a U-turn and start to follow.

To demonstrate, Beagin walks arm in arm with a model as three attractive women stroll past. The Beagin technique is to push his companion ahead of him as he steps back and turns his head to observe with slightly bulging eyes.

This gambit is intended for use by husband or boyfriend in that riskiest of all situations for a girl watcher — diverting his attention from his female companion to another attraction. The idea is not to get caught, he advises the 17,000 members of his organization, ranging from a 13-year-old rookie to an

contractor?

LAKE WORTH, Fla. (AP) — When J.W. Holley applied for a license as a roofing contractor, eyebrows were raised on the construction industry's licensing board.

But Jean Wilma Holley dispelled all doubt as to her qualifications and now the 41-year-old mother of three is well known on construction sites.

"It doesn't make any difference to us that she's a woman," said a muscled worker, "because she's good at her work and knows what she's doing."

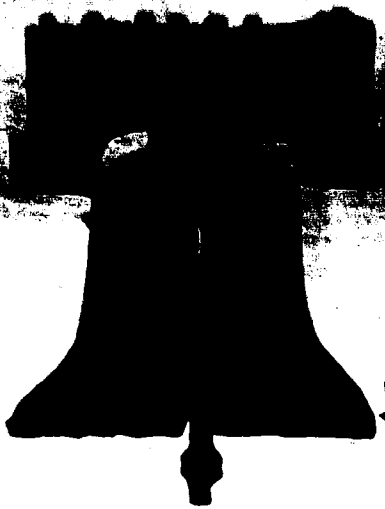

85-year-old seasoned vet. Annual dues are $6.

This week Beagin, who devotes full time to the organization and its pursuits, is advising the annual "Girl Watchers Week" at Century City, a skyscraper business complex in West Los Angeles containing an estimated 5,000 short-skirted secretaries.

"We abhor improper watching," insists Beagin, who has a 24-year-old son. "Being obvious and ungentlemanly about it spoils the pastime for everyone."

Sensitive to charges of "male chauvinism," watcher sponsors hired Beagin and recruited a corps of local secretaries and models to establish decorum and hand out tickets to offenders.

"I don't think the head should be turned," insists Cricket Goldenbee, whose blonde hair contrasts with purple hotpants.

a never finished business

Freedom is probably the most treasured word in all the world. Americans have enjoyed this great privilege for almost 200 years. But, there was a time when freedom in America was for the 'respectable' people, those who owned property to qualify for the right to vote.

Throughout our history, too often freedom has been abridged or denied to certain classes or minority groups.

Yet, eventually these groups have attained full acceptance into citizenship — not by riot or revolution, but by steady acceptance within the framework of our constitution.

This is the pride and glory of the United States, that we have been able to grow in freedom toward an ever-broader freedom.

Let Freedom in America never be finished business... and let America never cease working on it.

Run it up — Don't run it down

Li'l Hoaxer Strikes Again

Dear Rap:
Any good hoaxes lately? —

Dear Likes 'Em:
This one is pretty deadly, but it's the best we have:

I am a female mortician. I am to be married in three months. As long as I can get the chapel of the mortuary free, I would like to have my wedding there, but my fiancé prefers a church.

Dear Rap:
Here are a few more slang expressions we use around here—since you asked for contributions. —
"PEANUTS!" — It means "Oh, wow!"

"YOU'RE SO SMART!" This used to be sarcasm, but now you tell this to friends or parents when they do something intelligent.

"WHIPPED CREAM" — When you're about to be creamed by your parents, this is what you're gonna be!

"MIGHTY FINE LOOKIN' HOMBRE." A long haired guy that's cool.

"POCO LOCO!" When someone does something dumb.

"SON OF A BISCUIT." To be said when your parents are around.

"COOTIE." Seat. As in "Get your cootie off the table."

Luv ya 'cause "you're so smart." — LILLIE

Rap:
Reading your column about the "Non-rah-rah students" who got little school support with their community-help projects, I could sympathize, but it seemed to me the whole thing boiled down to my pet peeve: labeling.

In our school there are different labels for people. You're either a "freak," "rah-rah," "greaser" or "straight." The sad thing is that none of the groups intermingles.

I hung around with a bunch of kids considered "freaks," (way-out thinkers sometimes on drugs), and I got tired having to conform with their ideas and being put down when I talked to the so-called "straights."

So I broke away and now won't identify with any group—though I have a wide assortment of friends.

The most beautiful thing happened to me. I'd been eating lunch with some interesting "freaks" and they got the impression I WAS one. So one day I walked in with my twirling jacket on, and one said, "What are you—a rah-rah? I mean, what do we call you?"

And I said, "Why don't you stay with 'Karen'?"

They got my message. It's very easy to be a "label." Anyone can, if he or she conforms. But nobody else can be

YOU!

So why don't we start accepting people for what they are, not what their phony label represents? — A "KAREN"
A Karen:
From one label-hater to another—Right There!! — A "SUE"

Note From Helen:
For the uninformed: "Greaser" is a predominantly eastern word for the juke box crowd—the sort of junior hardhats. "Right There!" is a western successor to "Right On!" Okay? — HELEN Eric Jannersten points out that due to the bad diamond break and the unfavorable location of the king of spades, South will need card-reading plus some mild help from the defense.

The mild help is for West to start by cashing his three high hearts. East will play the four on the first lead and the seven the second time. South should drop his five at trick one and his deuce at trick two to give West the best incentive to play the three high hearts.

West shifts to the jack of spades at trick four and South should let this hold the trick. West has dealt, passed and shown up with 10 high card points. He just can't also hold the spade king.

West leads a second spade and this time the ace is played from dummy.

South cashes dummy's queen of diamonds and leads a diamond to his ace. West shows out and now we see why it was so important that South just concede that first spade trick. East is going to be caught in a squeeze.

Like most squeezes, it is a cinch when it has been built up. South cashes his last heart and discards a diamond from dummy. East had discarded a spade on the third heart; this time he lets a club go.

Now South plays ace-king and jack of clubs to dummy's queen and East has to throw either the king of spades or one of his two diamonds. Either way, South makes the rest of the tricks.

Duplicate Bridge Club meets

In the Rudy Fick home on Monday, Sept. 25, the Hope Duplicate Bridge Club met with 6 tables of players. Two guests from Vidalia, La., Mrs. Kenneth Ware and Mrs. Paul Yates, were first place scorers.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The Kellogg-Briand Peace Pact was signed Aug. 27, 1928, by 62 nations who condemned the "recourse to war for the solution of international controversies," but did not reject defensive war. The World Almanac recalls. The pact was ineffective because it had no provision for enforcement.

NEW PACKAGING IDEA NEW YORK (AP) — Pack-agers are turning to flexible materials to reduce the relatively high cost of packaging small food portions needed to tap low income, mass markets.

A significant innovation is the use of films, foils, laminates and overwrapping to combat high heat, humidity and insects, and thus prolong shelf life, according to the Bureau of International Commerce.

Mountain lion kittens are about 12 inches long when born and weigh about one pound each.

Johnny Whitaker
Uglying up a bit helped.

'Tom Sawyer' is a family film

By DICK KLEINER

ARROW ROCK, Mo.—(NEA)—When I heard that Johnny Whitaker had been cast in the title role of the new musical version of "Tom Sawyer," I figured the jig was up. I remembered Whitaker from Family Affair, and he was about as much like Tom Sawyer as Barbra Streisand is like Becky Thatcher. I figured the rest of the cast was going to be Raquel Welch as Aunt Polly, Joe Namath as Huck Finn and Sidney Poitier as Injun Joe.

Whitaker was always so professionally cute in Family Affair that each episode was like getting hit over the head with a 10-pound caramel. He had more freckles than talent, always a rotten proportion to me.

But things aren't quite so bad, now that I've seen how he's changed. As his father said to me, "Johnny's uglyed up a bit in the last few years." He's turned into a decent little 12-year-old boy, learned a bit about the acting trade and he looks more like Tom Sawyer than you might think.

"At first," says director Don Taylor, "I said no to Johnny in the part. I knew him, as most people did, as that obnoxious kid saying those obnoxious lines on Family Affair. But he's grown up, he's changed. I think, now, he's the perfect Tom."

They found their Huck Finn during a talent search in Kansas City. His name is Jeff East. His father says that they live next door to some people who are active in a Kansas City little theater, and it was these nosy neighbors who suggested that Jeff try out.

You'll note that fathers seem to be present at the location here. You're right, and there's a reason. This film is family time. It was shot, mostly, during the summer and all the cast and crew had kids, parents, wives, whatever, along with them.

On Sundays, they screen the week's rushes, and everybody shows up with their children. It was like the old days when the family went out on the weekend to see a movie together.

Don Taylor had his gorgeous wife, Hazel Court, along with him, and their 5-year-old son, Jonathan. Like most of the kids, he was in a scene.

"He had no lines," Hazel said, "but afterwards one of the townspeople asked him for his autograph — and he can't even spell his name."

Speaking of autographs, Celeste Holm, who is Aunt Polly, is still up to her old tricks. When asked for her autograph, she says she'll sign — for a quarter. The money is for UNICEF.

"Since I started this," she says, "I've raised $11,000 for UNICEF by charging for my autograph."

And, speaking of money, Warren Oates is in this, as the town drunk, Muff. Oates says he has a piece of the film, and is happy with that arrangement. But, he says he's a bit suspicious of United Artists' bookkeeping, and is planning to have his accountants keep an eagle eye on the books.

But back to the family aspect of the "Tom Sawyer" company. Johnny isn't the only Whitaker around — his father is here (they had him grow a beard and he's playing Oates' drinking buddy) and brought along four more of the eight Whitakers.

And all four have bits in the film.

Jeff East's father is a real estate man in Kansas City. This is his first exposure to the movie kingdom and it has surprised him — "I thought it was an easy business, compared to real estate, but these people really work hard."

Sometimes, the company has found, it's been handy to have the folks here. Hazel Court Taylor (sounds like the name of the lady who makes the king's suits) says one day she was in her motel room and both the phones started ringing at once.

"One call was from my daughter," she says. "She was calling from London to say she was getting married. The other one was Don, calling from a helicopter, to say they were running out of gas and I should please call the airport and tell them they were coming in—he couldn't raise them on the 'copter radio.'"

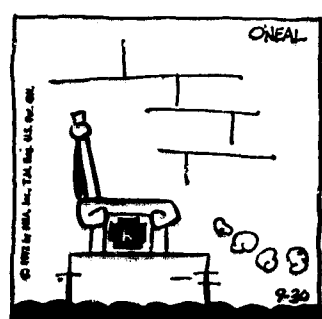

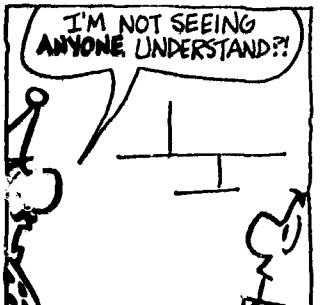

She felt very useful that day.

Roberto gets No. 3,000 — almost

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

Roberto Clemente thought he had it. Then he didn't. Now he's not sure he wants it that badly.

The Pittsburgh Pirates' wonder player appeared to have notched his 3,000th lifetime hit in a game with the New York Mets Friday night—until the official scorer ruled an error on the play.

Now, if the hit doesn't come this weekend, Clemente says that he's going to forget about it until next season.

"If I don't get the hit by Sunday, I won't get it this season," said Clemente after the Pirates lost a 1-0 decision to the Mets. "I won't play anymore after that until the playoffs. Being rested for the playoffs is more important to me than getting 3,000 hits."

The Pittsburgh right fielder was hitless in four trips against Tom Seaver, but he reached base in the first inning on a play that confused everybody at Three Rivers Stadium, including Clemente.

Although second baseman Ken Boswell bobbled Clemente's slow bouncer past the mound, the fans and umpires momentarily thought that it was hit No. 3,000.

The player was even presented the ball and he shook hands with Pittsburgh's first base coach, Don Leppert.

Then the "Error" sign flashed on the scoreboard. "I had a better than average chance of getting him," said Boswell. "I thought it was an error."

"There was no way he could get me," said Clemente, disputing Boswell's statement.

However, the slugging outfielder wasn't particularly upset.

Malvern dumps Hope by 11-0

Star Sports Writer

Hope fell last night at Hammons Stadium to a tough team of Malvern Leopards. The Leopards scored their points early and held on tight for what could be described as the most slim margin they've won by all year, 11-0.

Bye, bye, birdies

By HAL BOCK

Bye, bye, Birdies. And then there were three in the American League East pennant scramble with one of the survivors not in the very best of health.

Boston finished off Baltimore, eliminating the Orioles 4-2 Friday night with Carl Yastrzemski's two-run 10th inning homer applying the coup de grace.

The battle, almost certainly, will go down to the final three-game series between the two teams in Detroit next week.

Luis Tiant tossed a five-hitter to finish off the Orioles and end Baltimore's three-year reign atop the American League.

Baltimore did not die easily, forcing the game into extra innings before Yastrzemski settled it. His 11th homer, following a double by Tommy Harper, glanced off Don Buford's glove as the Oriole left fielder made a desperate leap at the fence.

It was Tiant's 15th victory. Jim Palmer, 21-10, took the loss.

The Tigers kept pace, bombing three Milwaukee pitchers for 11 runs in the first three innings and coasting past the Brewers. Jim Northrup led the romp with five runs batted in.

whacked Atlanta 14-3. Philadelphia's game at Montreal was postponed by rain.

With five games left for both Boston and Detroit, the Red Sox have a magic number of four to eliminate the Tigers and clinch baseball's last remaining division race.

grid quiz

by Dave Nelson, secretary-editor, NCAA Football Rules Committee

In the Cotton Bowl, against Notre Dame, a Texas substitute runs from his bench on first down at the Texas 9-yard-line after the ball has been declared ready for play and before the snap. When he is within 15 yards of the ball he requests a timeout from the nearest official. The ball is snapped and Texas fumbles and Notre Dame recovers on the 3-yard line.

The official should:

1. Grant the timeout and replay the down. 1st down and 10 for Texas on the 9-yard line.

MAJOR HOOPLE'S FOOTBALL FORECAST

Hoople's choices---

Major sees Vols, Texas, Colorado and Sun Devils taking conference openers

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE

Grid Seer Without Peer

Egad, friends, there is another excellent weekend of college football in store for you with outstanding clashes slated for every section of the country. And once again the Hoople Forecasting Team has put together a winning card for you — har-rumph!

Last week on these pages we gave you 41 winners in 54 contests for an excellent .759 average. And, lest you forget, we correctly forecast the upset triumph for Michigan over UCLA and Tulane's astonishing conquest of highly-regarded Georgia! What other forecaster in the country can boast of that record? None, I'll wager. (Ed Note: The Old Boy conveniently forgot to mention his errant upset prediction of Kentucky over Alabama!)

Some of this week's top league engagements which have come in for close scrutiny by the Hoople computer team are the Southeastern Conference meeting of the Tennessee Vols and Auburn, the Western Athletic Conference clash of the Arizona State Sun Devils and rugged Wyoming, the Texas-Texas Tech contest in the South-west Conference and the Colorado-Oklahoma State fray in the Big Eight.

Top intersectional contests match Oklahoma and Clemson, Southern California and Michigan State, LSU and Wisconsin, Michigan and Tulane, and Nebraska vs. Minnesota.

In the league meetings The Hoople System sees Tennessee topping Auburn, 17-14, Arizona State taking the measure of Wyoming in a wild-and-wooly affair, 35-28, Texas prevailing over the Red Raiders, 24-14, and Colorado's Buffaloes stampeding the Cowboys by a 36-12 count.

On the intersectional front, the powerful Trojans will hold on to their No. 1 rating by whipping invading Michigan State 35-20, second-ranked Oklahoma will have little trouble with Clemson winning by a 38-7 score, Louisiana State will continue on its merry way with a 32-24 win over Wisconsin, and Nebraska will rack up its third straight victory by taking Minnesota, 36-12. And in the battle of the upsets, Michigan will edge Tulane, 28-22—kaff-kaff!

One eastern contest worthy of special note will find Fordham playing a major foe for the first time in umpteen years when they invade the lair of the Columbia Lions. A far cry from the famed eleven of "The Seven Blocks of Granite" days, the 1972 Rams will give a good account of themselves before succumbing, 28-18 — um-kumph!

The Old Boy Himself

The Hoople Upset Special of the week is unranked Kansas to whip favored Florida State. Yes, dear friends, the Jayhawks will scalp — heh-heh—the Seminoles, 22-15.

Now go on with the forecast.

Longhorns face Texas Tech.

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Tonight's 7:30 kickoff in Jones Stadium will provide Texas Coach Darrell Royal some answers about his "mystery" team.

The Longhorns, seeking a fifth consecutive Southwest Conference football title, are 11-point favorites but run smack into a Texas Tech team which is No. 2 in the nation in total offense.

A crowd in excess of 50,000 fans will be on hand to see if the Longhorns are the bumbling outfit they appeared in a sloppy 23-10 season-opening victory over Miami.

Coach Jim Carlen of Tech doesn't believe any talk about Texas being on the downgrade. "Their offensive line is strong and Texas is solid in every department," Carlen says.

On the other side of the coin: is Tech as good an offensive machine as it showed in rolling over Utah and New Mexico?

Royal says Tech "has speed and a lot of enthusiasm. George Smith has a lot of speed ... he's a good inside runner as well. James Moseley (fullback) is as tough as a pine knot. He's a fine blocker and will test our linebackers."

Quarterback Alan Lowry will undergo his biggest test yet for the Longhorns.

Royal says he feels better about Lowry after seeing films of the Miami game.

"I had felt that he played well after the game, but after viewing the films I think he was exceptional," Royal says.

Lowry has been bothered by a left shoulder bruise but should be at full speed for the Raiders.

Texas defeated Tech 28-0 last year and owns an all-time 18-3 record over the Raiders. In the SWC series, it's 10-2.

In other games, the SWC hopes to add to its gaudy 11-4 intersectional record which saw the league go eight-for-nine on "Super Saturday."

Arkansas is a prohibitive favorite over Tulsa, the Texas Aggies are 14-point picks over Army; Rice is a 14-point underdog to Georgia Tech; SMU is a three-point choice over Virginia Tech; and Texas Christian is a 21-point pick over Texas-Arlington.

Rice, SMU, and TCU are unbeaten.

Rice plays at Tech, SMU is at Virginia Tech, TCU hosts UT-Arlington, A&M entertains Army, and Arkansas hosts Tulsa. The Army-A&M and UTA-TCU games are night affairs.

Aggie Coach Emory Ballard is expected to start three freshmen in the backfield against Army—halfbacks Bubba Bean, Skip Walker and fullback Alvin Bowers—because of injury to regulars fullback Brad Dusek and halfback Mark Green.
